PADRES TRIM GILROY IN CAGE OPENER; MEET HOLY CROSS TONIGHT, HERE

Carmel High School's basketball team took up where the football team left off and whipped a good Gilroy team last Friday night to notch victory number one for the '49-50 season. The red and grey varsity showed flashes of good team play in garnering their 30-24 victory, but, for the most part, the game was replete with early season raggedness. The two classy Carmel guards, Steve Whitaker and Jim Hare, turned in the best floor performances of the evening and did a good job in controlling the defensive backboards. Neither team enjoyed good shooting percentages from the floor as evidenced by Carmel's 11 goals in 68 shots, and Gilroy's 8 goals in 42 shots.

Gilroy was off to a good start in the first quarter, piling up a 5-0 lead in the first two minutes. However, Denicio Narvaez personally wiped out the Mustang lead when he canned a 20 footer and made good on three charity tosses. Red Vandervort put the Padres ahead midway in the quarter and they stayed in front for the rest of the Carmel's lightweight squad put up'a sterling battle before bowing to the Gilroy Babes, 19 to 13. Bob Updike, Stu Emery, and Butch Laugenour sparked the little Padres against the rangy Gilroy gang. Conrad Ege. Alan Reyburn. Myron Branson, Ronald Stoney, Mike Elliott, and Bradley Dixon, newcomers to the lightweights, proved to be useful hands on the court and should have the makings for a nifty Padrecito crew. Coach Dawson gave all twenty squad members an opportunity to display their wares and gain valuable game experience.

Tonight, the Holy Cross High School from Santa Cruz will furnish the opposition for the Padres. Holy Cross had one of the best lightweight teams in the section last year and they are full grown varsity players this season. Carmel has prepped for tonight's game by scrimmaging with Fort Ord and Ricketts Sports.

PINE CONE BLANKED BY SALINAS NINE IN WINTER LEAGUE PLAY

Spotty support and inability to hit in the pinches proved too tough an obstacle for the Pine Cone horsehiders to overcome last Sunday and they dropped their initial Winter League tussle to the loaded Salinas nine. Salinas threw the venerable Lefty Cantrell at the locals and his wide assortment of curves kept the Carmel sluggers back on heir heels for most of the game. Pitcher Miya Miyamoto was the only printer to successfully fathom Cantrell's slants, picking up a neat 3 for 3. Miya pitched a solid enough game for the Coners but the best of hurlers have to have a run or two to work on, and the Giles-led printers collected exactly no runs while Salinas was crossing the dish for an even half-dozen. Sunday's loss drops the Pine Cone from first place into a tie with the D&J Tailors for runner-up spot. Pacific Grove holds sway at the top of the heap and the Coners will be going all out next Sunday to knock Smokey Devlin's crew off the pinnacle. The Pine Cone and Pacific Grove play the 2:30 tilt, while Fort Ord and Salinas square off at 12:45.

HONOR FOR PADRE TRAILS

The Padre Trails Camera club has placed second in the Photographic Society of America's International Club color slide competition, Class B, division.

Largely responsible for bringing the local club's score to second place in competition in which about 80 clubs competed was Mrs. Fred Hofsas' transparency, which had previously won picture of the year award in the Padre Trails competition.

Editor, The Carmel Pine Cone Cymbal. Carmel, California.

Being that during the five years that I maded as ...

had the pleasure of going to Carmel quite often, and I will always retain the most pleasant memories of that little town by the sea, I am always interested in any news that may appear in regard to it. When anyone mentions Carmel and its quiet beauty as well as its well known beach on whose sands I had many a good gallop on my mare Consuelo, I am always pleased and interested. When anyone writes or speaks of Carmel in any other manner, my ire is aroused. It is not, therefore, with any pleasure that I am at this time sending you a clipping from The Oakland Post Enquirer of December 1, 1949, in which a certain writer of the said paper dares to ridicule Carmel by his obvious reference to it as a one horse town.

If it is true, as I well know it, that one must travel to the town's post office to secure one's mail, it is also a fact that such a quaint practice affords those fortunate citizens of Carmel the fine opportunity to see each other and exchange greetings. Many a time. that I had occasion to go to the Carmel Post Office, I always had the great pleasure of meeting someone I knew and whom I was glad

Pete Post may be trying to be humorous, but if so, I for one, do not think that his type of humor is at all amusing. Perhaps he should spend a few weeks there and learn from Carmel writers the art of being humorous instead of being asinine.

I am very sincerely yours, Carlos Dieguez, A lover of Carmel by the Sea.

The item that aroused Mr. Dieguez, ire, follows:

"In case you didn't know, Carmel-by-the-Sea is unique (translated from the Latin -- "une," meaning one; "ique" from equine, or horse) because there are no neon lights, no street numbers, and if you want your mail you must go to the postoffice for it as there's no mail delivery. Repeat: Unique."

Bea Raiston To Show Color Slides Of Snowmass Lake

Beatrice Ralston will show colored slides taken in one of the most scenic sections of the west at the regular Monday night meeting of the color photography class. While traveling through Colorado Miss Ralston spent considerable time photographing the Snowmass Lake Wilderness area which is near Glenwood Springs.

The group will meet in Room 12 of Sunset School at 7:45 and everyone interested is invited to attend.

PADRE TRAILS WINNERS

First honors in the monthly contest night of the Padre Trails Camera Club, held at Forest Hill Hotel last Saturday, were taken by Paul Day in the color class and Fred Hofsas in black and white.

Honorable mentions in the color class went to Captain H. Brown, first; Gilbert Kerr, second; and Ed Brooks, third. In black and white work, honorable mentions were awarded to Fred Hofsas again for first, and to his wife, Donna Hofsas, for second and third.

Judges for the contest were Russell Cummings and Robert G. O'Brien.

The Alarm Clock Has Wrung For Carmel

BY HENRY MEADE WILLIAMS

Sometimes a community wakes up to discover that it has lost the golden opportunity to buy beauty at a bargain price. For the people of Carmel, the alarm clock has rung. Will Carmel wake up?

That question was put straight to a group of alert citizens of this city last night at a meeting of the Point Lobos League, the members of which have long realized that Carmel may lose its chance to valuable beauty of the nearby beaches.

These beaches are a familiar to you as Ocean Avenue and almost as important. You have seen them, sun-bathed on them, picnicked on their golden sands. Maybe you thought, as so many others have thought, that they were public beaches. That is not true, as it was pointed out at the meeting last night. There is not a single stretch of publicly owned—State, County or community-beach, with the exception of two small areas, between the south end of Carmel Beach and Pfeiffer's State Parkthirty miles down the coast!

acquire for the community the in-

The alert group of public minded residents, headed by Francis Whitaker, president of the Point Lobos League, decided at last night's meeting that the people of Carmel and the surrounding communities should know exactly what their opportunity is, how it can be real-

Rocky Point Sold; John Nesbitt Is Coming To Town

Seth Ulman announces that he has just sold the dramatic Rocky Point acreage of Sidney A. Trevvett and Walter Egan to "Rocky" and "Lou" Bowersox, clients and friends from Michigan and Florida. John Gamble, one of the outstanding designers of the Peninsula, has just completed plans for a beautiful dwelling for the Bowersoxes which will probably be one of the most interesting on Coast Highway Number One.

Another announcement is that John Mesbitt could not keep away from the urge of living on the Peninsula in spite of his thousands of acres down below the Sur and has recently purchased one of the loveliest locations in the Aguajito tract where Southern California Architects have designed for him a most appropriate home.

Seth Ulman promises more interesting developments not only at Aguajito but also Carmel Highlands and Coast Highway properties on State Highway Number One. John Domenici of St. Gothards Inn at St. Helena, who is operating a great deal of food and dining room sophistication the new Domenici Room at the La Ribera Hotel has also purchased beautiful acreage at Carmel Highlands where he is going to build and live permanently, according to Ulman who established him on the Penized, how important it is to protect and cherish the natural beauty of the beaches and exactly what area is involved.

In the first nlarea, this land that should be owned by the community, is generally known as the Carmel Lagoon *beach—but it embraces much more than that. Actually the property consists of beach area extending from Stewart Point, in Carmel Point Unincorporated, to San Jose Creek, approximately 160 acres.

"The possibility of purchasing this land is no more pipe dream,' Whitaker said at last hight's meeting. Already the acquisition of this area as a public park has been approved by the State Division of Beaches and Parks, by Monterey County and by the County Planning Commission. The State has funds available at such a time as private matching funds are received. The County has already set aside a fund earmarked for that purpose.

"You see what that means," Whitaker said, "Each dollar you contribute, added to the county fund and doubled by the State , scenes and tableaus that the play fund, will amount to five dollars. In other words, you can buy a beach for twenty percent of its actual worth. Not a bad bargain!"

But this bargain may be lost if action if not taken immediately. "The goal of the Point Lobos League," Whitaker pointed out, "is to raise by public subscription and donations around $25,000. The State has set aside $15,000,000 for beaches and parks. Since 1944, only 15-20 percent of this amount has been spent. The State is interested in those communities which show interest in their own projects. Our priority position is 1-b. second only to Del Monte beach project in Monterey County. If the state and county realize how important this project is, isn't it time that we began to do something about our share of work in acquiring that land already approved by the state and county?"

If Carmel does not raise its quota, the legislature may justifiably reach the conclusion that Carmel is not interested and therefore the legislature may divert Carmel's share of the $15,000,000 to other projects where community interest is higher. "That would end, once and for a long time, our golden opportunity to purchase the Carmel River lagoon lands," Whitaker said.

Teachers, Kids, Everybody Going Full Steam Ahead On Sunset Play You're Invited To Come Thursday

Everyone at Sunset School is pitching in with full vigor to make the Annual Christmas Play perfect in every detail for its presentation to the community on Thursday evening, December 15 at Sunset Auditorium at 8:00 p. m.

Students will have their opportunity to see it at dress rehearsal Wednesday afternoon.

The Christmas Play is the product of the whole group of students and teachers at Sunset. However, the special teachers assume the major responsibility for the production. Art Holman, Ernest Calley and Gerome Castagnetto combined to write the background for the tableaus, and Mr. Castagnetto put the ideas together to form the program.

The stage crew, under Mr. Calley's supervision with Paul Fratessa as the student director, is painting flats, working with the lights, making properties and doing the tremendous job of readying the stage for the Thursday evening performance. The working assistants are Tom Bunn, James Hallett, Eugene Mulnix, Dick Ogden, Tom Petty, Deane Phillips, Shannah Stanton and Susan Stanton. Mr. Castagnetto points out that these people deserve a great deal of credit which is seldom extended to them. For without their craftmanship and ingenuity in the development of the all important sets and lighting, the play would lose much of its force. It takes a lot of skill and hard work to create the mood and feeling in the set for the requires.

Mr. Holman, directing the music, has a full choir of 55 students, a small choir consisting of 12, and a quartet. Those in the small choir are Gwen Balazs, Cynthia Blum, Jeznne Fratessa, Whilhelmina Funke, Mary Garcia, Carole Goodrich, Susan Harney, Connie Nielsen, Georgie Rawlings, Patricia Doolittle, Priscilla Clark, Patricia Clark. Those in the quartet are Patricia Doolittle, Carole Goodrich, Cynthia Blum, and Jeanne Fratessa. These people also make part of the 55 in the large choir group. The Carols the choir, small choir and quartet sing are chosen for their ability to add to the feeling of the tableaus and their traditional quality. Still, one or two relatively unkown carols will be sung to add interest and variety. The Choir will sing O Come All Ye Faithful, O Little Town of Bethlehem, Silent Night, The First Noel, Great St. Joseph - Son of David, Angels We have Heard on High. We Three Kings. Joy to the World. The small choir will sing Coventry Carol, Hark the Hearald Angels Sing, I Sing of a Maiden. The quartet will sing I Wonder as I wander.

Mr. Castagnetto is the general chairman for the affair and directing the play. He is ably assisted by Bonnie Lynn Redhead, student director. The play, provided as a background for the tableaus, opens in Herod's Council Chamber where Herod and Council discuss the visit of three Wise Men, who have come to adore a new king of the Jews. Herod and his council are concerned, but are doubtful about the possibility of it. As a consequence, they decide to review the prophecies about the birth of a new king, and this review unfolds the tableaus. Members of the cast are Herod, Gary Appleton; Junius, Pat Grimshow; Lucretinius, Roger Shields; Plutonius, Millard Martin. Courtiers: Mark Simenon and Charles Fratangelo. Mary, Diane Thorne; Joseph, Merle Pitman; Inn Keeper, Roger Newell; Shepherds, Bobby Halliday, Dick Holt, Bruce Newell. Wise Men: Ted Ledbetter, Jon Chase, Don da Rosa. Angels: Gail Fisher, Renee Myette, Susan Trevvett, Renee Wurzmann, Gail McHarry. Beggers: Charley Soloman, Dennis Taplin.

The program consists of six short scenes in Herod's Council and six tableaus about the Nativity. The tableaus present Mary and Joseph at the Inn, the visitation of shepherds by an angel, Mary, Joseph and the Infant in the manger, the arrival of the shepherds at the manger, the presentation of gifts by the Wise Men, and the Ador-

Kersh To Dance In Free Program At Art Gallery

The Carl Cherry Foundation announces as its Christmas gift to the community a programme of Dances of a Religious Nature by Tenry Kersh. The performances will take place at the Carmel Art Association gallery on Wednesday and Thursday, December 28 and 29 promptly at 8:45 p.m. There is no admission charge but due to the limited capacity of the gallery reservations should be made in advance by calling Abinante Music Shop, Carmel 429-J. Due to the creative nature of the performance, the doors of the gallery will be closed promptly at 8:45 and no one will be admitted after that

The programme has been selected in an effort to recapture the intrinsic beauty of Christmas which perhaps, has been slightly overshadowed in recent years. The Carl Cherry Foundation feels that Mr. Kersh's work is capable of expressthis spiritual significance.

The programme will include dances to Gergorian Chants, two carols, a Bach "Air", and a lament of Harry Partch. The performance will conclude with the Angel of the Annunciation.

Mr. Kersh will be remembered for his recent very successful concert at the Forest Theater which included certain religious tendencies which he has now chrystallized into a complete programme.

Male Chorus Leads Community Sing On December 21

The Male Chorus, which has developed under the Adult Education program, will produce its Christmas program in the Woman's Club, December 21, at 8 o'clock. Carl Simon, another employee of the N. P. Van Valkenburg company, contractors for the sewering job for Carmel Point, who was not buried so deeply in the cave-in and was removed first, is reported as in a good condition. He was conscious when released after twenty minutes of frantic digging by fellow workmen. He was given emergency treatment by Dr. William F. Coughlin and removed in the Carmel Red Cross Ambulance to the Community Hospital, later to the Monterey Peninsula Hospital, where his condition is reported good.

Cipriani, buried five or six feet below Simon was not reached for at least forty minutes. He was given artificial respiration by the first aid crew of the ambulance, until pronounced dead by Dr. J. B. McCarthy. It is believed he had probably been dead for some time when the workmen reached him through the deep layer of sand that covered him.

Cipriani is survived by his wife and two children.

Speakers At Carmel Valley CREA Convention Rap Federal Housing

The serious part of the Fun Convention of the CREA Women's Division came Saturday noon at the Carmel Valley Inn luncheon.

State Commissioner D. D. Watson, first speaker on the program, assured the delegates and guests who filled the dining room and overflowed onto the sun porch, that Governor Warren does not favor federal housing and does favor rent decontrol.

Other speakers emphasized that in their opinion Federal housing is a step toward socialism, Ed Wallace, retiring president of the CREA making the point that it should be designated as "socialized" housing, "giving it the stigma of socialism, which it is, as the American Medical Association spoke of 'Socialized Medicine', in their campaigns against public medicine."

Called on in addition to Watson and Wallace were F. H. Lakey, president-elect; Eugene P. Conser, Isabel Mitchell, Eleanor Breniger, Ernest Morehouse, president of the Carmel Board of Realtors, and Gladys Johnston.

Peggy Marquard, chairman of the Women's Division, Northern Area, presided over the meeting charmingly and along with Gladys Johnston received the compliments of the speakers and guests for their successful arrangements for the convention.

Carmel Valley, which was enjoying an Indian Summer day out of a book, came in for its share of compliments.

Everybody Loves The New Uniforms, And The Band, Too

At 2:30 Thursday afternoon, sudden strains of martial music drew an interested public to the Plaza. The High School band was in full and enthusiastic swing, 28 strong, behind the able leadership of Lanny Doolittle, drum major, and pretty brunette Ann Brown, majorette. The occasion was the first demonstration of the newly arrived band uniforms, grey wool whipcord with brilliant scarlet trim, well fitting and becoming to all. The uniforms were a well earned tribute to the youngsters who have sacrificed a half hour's worth of lunch time each day this term to bring their group up to its present standard of competence. Considerable credit is due John Farr, high school music master, who has inspired the band with this cooperative enthusiasm. After the well drilled opening in the square the band paraded downtown—then up and to the park where they concluded with due flourish and eclat. Though the band has played through the term at games both local and out of town, this was its first program for the general public. Everybody was pleased and impressed.

RED + NEWS

The last visit from the blood Bank Mobile Unit netted a total of 48 pints of blood donated. Many donors were visiting the Blood Bank for their fourth time, and many new donors came to replace blood used by friends or relatives.

Four local doctors contributed their services and were in attendance during the hours the bank was in operation. Those giving their time were Dr. R. A. Kocher, Dr. W. A. Carnazzo, Dr. Phillip Carnig and Dr. W. F. Coughlin, all of whom expressed great interest in the operation of the service as a non-profit community project.

The Pine Inn was responsible for the donation of a buffet lunch, served to donors and workers by the Canteen Unit of Red Cross.

Increasing interest in the program has been aroused by the active participation of local service clubs, religious groups and business organizations. To date seventeen such units have pledged themselves to procure two donors for each visit of the Bloodmobile. As the Peninsula's population increases, the need for whole blood at the hospitals has grown accordingly; and it is expected that shortly in order that hospital rethe quota will be raised very quirements be met and a margin left on deposit for any sudden emergency or disaster.-

Due to the approaching holidays, the next visit of the Mobile Blood Service will be on Dec. 12. If you have not yet done so, the Christmas season is a most appropriate time to make the best gift of all, the gift of life, to someone in your own neighborhood. Telephone Carmel 382 and make your appointment now.

The quarterly meeting of the Red Cross Directors was held Wed., Nov. 30, at Carmel Chapter House, with Mr. Mathew Jenkins presiding.

Mr. Thomas Perry was introduced as chairman for the 1950 fund-raising drive, and spoke a few words regarding the continued need for Red Cross assistance to the community.

Mr. Thomas Elston, chairman of disaster relief, reported on a survey now being made, looking to better and more efficient rescue and relief, the need for which was so pointedly brought to the community's attention during the Tassajara and Carmel Valley fires of September. When the findings are completed, the information will be made available to the entire community, Mr. Elston stated.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Miss Pauline McCallum, assistant Red Cross Field Director at Fort Ord. Miss McCallum stressed the need for better undertanding of the problems facing the Red Cross and the community, due to the nature of the peacetime army.

"The boys in the army now average eighteen years of age," she said. "That means there are a large number who are sixteen and seventeen. These boys are still late adolescents, faced with an adolescent's problems. In addition many of them have come into the army from broken homes or very poor homes, seeking security. Many of them have failed to adjust to army life and are restless, bored and disillusioned.

"Therefore the Red Cross has committed itself to a program of aid to the able-bodied as well as the invalids. The boys need constructive entertainment, additional education, sympathy and understanding."

Miss McCallum concluded her talk with a plea for more volunteers to play cards with the boys, interest them in sports and crafts, and generally to help relieve their boredom and keep their morale on a high level.

Outfall Work Starts With Due Consideration For Artichoke Fields: Last Eleven Join Sanitary District

Out of tenderness for the artichoke crop and the Carmel Sanitary District's pocket book, the firm of McQuire and Hester, when they start construction on the ocean outfall next week will work from the outside in. They were awarded the contract for the job two weeks ago for $26,254. During the winter months activities will be confined to building the part of the outfall that crosses the dunes and projects into the bay. Not until March, when the least damage will be done, will the invastion of the artichoke field south of the board on December 27 to of the plant take place. Even then, it is estimated that damage will amount to about $500. To compensate for this the Sanitary Board members signed a contract at Monday night's board meeting to allow the O'Dello Bros., who are lessees of the artichoke land, the use of affluent from the reduction plant for irrigation purposes during the summer of 1950. The district has already paid $500 to the owner of the land, Elizabeth Oliver, for right of way. The outfall should be completed in April.

The board also passed a resolution for publication of a petition for annexation to Carmel Sanitary District by the owner of nine lots in the Mission tract, Alma Brooks Walker, also by Martha Maria and Richard Hall Nohring; Douglas and Louise Riggs, one lot each. With the inclusion of these 11 lots, all of the outlying districts west of Highway No. 1 and north of Carmel River, and the areas north of Carmel, will have joined the

There will be a special meeting hold a hearing on the annexation petition.

The board members approved a minor change of plans for the sewage installations on the Point, so that the short line on Valley View may be installed at the rear of the lots instead of in front because of more favorable soil conditions.

Expressing dissatisfaction with the decision of the Carmel Planning Board in approving the plans for Carmelita subdivision over the recommendation of the Sanitary District board that they be disapproved on the grounds that satsifactory arrangements had not been made for sewage disposal, the Sanitary board instructed its secretary to write the city council, requesting that it inform the County Supervisors that subdivision plans, according to law should, be referred to the city council, not to the planning board, as had been done in the case of the Carmelita Subdivision plans.

Work Going Ahead On Youth Center

It's full steam ahead on the Youth Center construction now. Foundations are prepared, concrete mixed and, best of all, the space marked wistfully on the original plan "Future Auditorium" is now to be incorporated with the immediate project! Thanks to the timely Lucie Stern Foundation gift, $7500, John Grace, of the Robert R. Jones architectural firm, has completed a simple but efficient design for the much appreciated building. With a floor plan of 50 by 100 feet the room will seat about 100-chairs removable, of course, for dances or indoor games. Because of limited space there will be no stage or permanent platform, but a movable one is projected for music recitals or informal theatricals. There is strictly "no comment" on potential completion dates, but there is general satisfaction over the beginning.

Menuhin-Baker Concert Finest Of Its Kind Yet To Be Given In Carmel

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

With the appearance in Sunset Auditorium on Saturday evening of Yaltah Menuhin and Israel Baker violinist, the Denny-Watrous management brought to Carmel the finest concert of its kind I can remember in these parts. Sonata recitals do not draw the lukewarm music fans, but for those able to enjoy this somewhat rarefjed form of entertainment, this concert was a rare experience.

was demanding upon the artists,

but had much charming melody and a definitely satiric quality, tempered with tolerance. The first movement, after some distinctly boogie passages, rose to an excit-

The importance of the occasion was attested by the presence among the audience not only of Yehudi Menuhin, listening to his sister's brilliant performance, but also by the presence of George Antheil listening to the world premiere of his world premiere of his world as he might just as well have chosen to be in Town Hall in New York where another of his works was having its first performance at the same time.

Israel Baker was no stranger to these parts, having appeared here about a year ago with the Van den Berg Quartet under the auspices of the Musical Art Club. Mr. Baker was formerly concert master of the Minneapolis Symphony, and also of the orchestra under Leopold Stokowsky which toured South America as a musical goodwill embassy during the war.

Miss Menuhin, whose brilliant execution and exquisite tonal qualities deeply moved her audience, is the charming mother of two children who finds time to be good enough at her piano to play the Emperor Concerto with the San Francisco Symphony later this winter. Her talent is such that she need not feel overshadowed by her famous brother.

The program opened with the Mozart A. Major Sonata, a very delightful work full of the gaiety and sparkle of the composer at his best. Miss Menuhin played with a light, ebullient spirit which belied the difficulty of the piano part. The difficult violin part was well handled by Mr. Baker. Particularly pleasing was the lyric second movement in which the piano part was dominant. In the last movement, a breathtaking presto, the pianist negotiated with disarming ease many highly exacting passages.

The Antheil sonata, during which the composer turned pages for Miss Menuhin, was not as difficult a transition from Mozart as one might expect. This American composer, despite excursions into the experimental field, such as his famous Ballet Mecanique, is not a radical modern. He is a believer in the essential soundness of the established sonata form. The work ing climax. The second movement had very lyric lines for the violin, and an unusual, arther elusive base for the piano. The last movement had even more of a jazz flavor, but still much melody, in which violin and piano were well balanced. A turbulent, frenetic climax left a much stimulated audience which applauded vigorously.

Judgment of any serious piece of music, particularly modern music, based on one hearing is not worth the ink to write it. But this sonata ought surely to withstand the test of more critical appraisal than I can give, and I for one would like to hear it again.

Following the intermission we heard the Brahms Sonata No. 2 in

A major. The two artists performance was very well integrated, and Mr. Baker displayed a forceful style and a clean, incisive attack. This work, particularly in the last movement, gave the violinist a greater opportunity than earlier parts of the program. He acquitted himself most ably, although his style is, quite understandably, more that of a first-rate orchestral player than of one who has been primarily a concert soloist.

At the end of a most demanding program the artists, who had seemed to thoroughly enjoy their work, gave us two encores, in the form of two movements from the Beethoven Sonata, Opus 30. I mistook these brilliant and vivacious selections for Mozart, recalling the charm and sparkle of the first part of the program. Such an error is not hard to make with the early work of Beethoven.

Letters to his family from a Carmel lad, twenty or thereabouts, studying art and getting into predicaments in Paris.

By Ric Masten

October 9, 1949 Do you remember when I wrote about my first day at Julianns? I told you I was sort of embarrassed: Well that wasn't the half of it. I was scared stiff. All those older men, good painters too, working away made me feel small, so I crept off in a corner where there was a mirror and started a self portrait.

After about an hour the whole thing struk me as being terribly funny. There was little me off in my corner painting myself while everyone was painting this luscious babe in the nude. I'm enclosing a cartoon of how ridiculous the whole thing was.

ways were a bit crowded. I can verify that statement now. In fact I never had so many people breathing down the back of my neck at the same time. There were elderly ladies crawling around on their hands and knees and every time somebody else came into the car sembody would be squeezed out of the closed windows on the other side. It happened luckily that I was squeezed out of a closed window at the station where I was to meet the bus. When I got up into the sun I found that I had on someone's right shoe and my shirt sleeve was wrapped around my neck. But this didn't stop me. Not me! I was going to find out what

Here we go with "Gullible's Travels". This time I decided to take a trip to Versailles mainly because of my classic remarks, which the Neses are still laughing about. Elizabeth said to me one day, "Ric you must go down to Versailles." I lazily turned to her and asked, "What have they got down there?" There were peals of laughter and I was voted the "stupidest jerk since Adam."

So "the studipest jerk since Adam" got his maps out last Sunday and decided to go out and see what they have got down there. I kissed "old thick glasses" on the cheek. She felt my finger, and I checked the pebbles and bread crumbs in my pocket, then lowered myself into the subway. I had to change subways twice, then take a bus out to Versailles.

On Sunday I had heard the sub-they had down there, if I had to do it "necked." I got into the bus and I noticed the man across the aisle had lost his pants so I felt much better.

The bus rattled off over the cobble stones and my breakfast was shaken thoroughly. The bus was sort of like a giant mixmaster and you were poured out at the station of your choice, mine being Versailles.

Now I was going to find out why I was "the stupidest jerk since Adam." I didn't know what to expect, green elephants, giants and beanstalks. I stood in the street and looked around for a blue cow and then I saw it. It was the 'Palace of Versailles", one of the most beautiful palaces in the world. Louis XIV built it, and Marie Antoinette and a lot of other glamour gals and guys have lived there at one time or another. It covers about two square miles of land and really is something to see. I wandered into the main hall and joined a group that was to tour the palace. These tours have a French guide who tells you the things that have happened in each room. He tells you about the paintings and rugs and carvings, etc. He babbles away in French, and I was always looking at the ceiling when he was telling about the floor and vice versa. Finally I began to follow the heads, when everybody looked up, I looked up. When they looked down, heh, heh, I kept looking up!!! Because all the ceilings in this palace were done in real careful paintings. Boy it looked as if all the old painters must have had to have tails so they could make money at painting. Upside down stuff you know. We wandered down the famous hall of mirrors. I was staggered — my hair was all messed up. We went to the room of Louis XIV's wife and saw the door that she first went through "to show her affection" to the King. That was the quaint interpretation of our guide. Then we saw the room where Louis XIV died. From the way the French people in our group looked, I thought we were all going to pin on black and back out of the room crossing ourselves. We kept going and going. My neck felt like an old twisted rag from looking at all the painted ceilings. When it was finally over I wandered around in the gardens. I was really overwhelmed, they were so beautiful. Wonderful fountains, statues, and lily ponds. The trees were full of autumn colors and there was a ting in the air. I shuffled along through the red leaves sort of dreaming. The wind rustling through the leaves sounded like voices, soothing and calm. It sure was something, even the ride home in the subway didn't bother me because of all the beauty I had seen and soaked up. I'm all wet.

Well time for school. I guess I had better dash and paint another masterpiece. I'm calling it autumn leaves. It might be pretty good. I'll let you know as I progress on it.

Mr. James Blee's Sixth Grade SOUTH AMERICA. HERE WE COME!

For social studies this year we are studying about South America. It is one of the most interesting topics I have had in school. We are learning about the countries, what they produce, and the habits of the people. Each child is taking a special topic to sutdy and write a theme about. There are the rubber industry, the countries, the explorers and many others.

Some children are making maps and friezes about their topics. They are very interesting and very well done. I am studying Argentina and later I plan to make a picture of the Argentine gauchos.

Along with this, Mr. Blee is teaching us Spanish. We have learned about one hundred and ten words so far, and it is lots of fun to say them in sentences.

Also, every Monday morning, the rows in our room take turns bringing in current events about our school work. They are very interesting, and it is teaching us to look for, and notice ads in the papers and magazines. Social studies is fun this year and I know that I am going to like it.

-Helen Ross.

AFTER SCHOOL SPORTS FOR GIRLS

At Sunset School the girls in the sixth and seventh grades have after school sports. It lasts from 3:00 until 5:00 o'clock. Miss Milstead is our athletics teacher.

At the first of the year we played kickball. The two captains were Sarah McCloud and Connie Niel-

Miss Milstead gave us a Hallowe'en party at her house. While we were there we discussed what we would like to play the next Monday. We decided to play dodgeball. We are now playing volley ball and net ball. The captains are Cynthia Blum and Jean Reyburn. Cynthia's team has won two games in net ball so far.

-Kahterine Nieto.

I am going to tell how many stamps our room has bought this year and tell how we work our stamp chart. All together we have bought eight fifty-cent stamps, seven twenty-five-cent stamps, and three hundred and thirteen tencent stamps. When you have your book full, you get a twenty-five dollar bond.

On the chart you get a mark after your name for every week that you buy a stamp. You get an orange mark for ten-cent stamps, a blue one for twenty-five cent stamps, and a green one for fiftycent stamps. The treasurer of Mr. Blee's room is Donald da Roza and the school treasurer is John —Dick Leutzinger. Thompson.

AUDUBON

I belong to the Audubon Society. We go on field trips with Mr. Blee or Mr. Ballou. We have gone to Moss Landing and studied the birds there. Some of the children found nests there. We have also gone to the De Amaral ranch, and San Jose Creek.

We have Audubon screen tours. During the last screen tour Mr. Burt Hartwell gove us some bird calls by whistling. He also showed us a movie on Canada. It was very interesting. It showed us the humming birds, bluebirds, and the other birds and plants.

*PHYSICAL EDUCATION

In physical education the boys and girls play separately. Mr. Blee takes the boys in their games and Mrs. Rea takes the girls. The games we play are work-up kickball, dodgeball, partner kickball and team kickball.

On Mondays the two classes get together and do folk dancing. Sometimes Mrs. Rea takes the girls down to the gymnasium and takes the records and we make up our own dances. On rainy days Mrs. Rea takes her boys and girls and Mr. Blee takes his boys and girls and we play games in our room.

—Lawrence Luzie.

SCIENCE IN OUR CLASS

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon we discuss things in science such as cells in the human body, different birds around and about, how sound travels and so on.

Last month a few boys made a bird feeding tray. Not many birds come and eat though, because they are afraid. Sometimes on Friday afternoon we go on a field trip and study the things around us. We also watch for birds and animals. We all take notes on the

This week we are studying how sound travels. Sometimes when some special thing occurs, like a bird we haven't seen, we stop our work and study it.

In our room there is a little table with three different kinds of pine cones, pine needles, snow berries, and things of that sort. We all have fun in science.

and the school is bigger. The other school that I attended was in San Diego. All we got to do was play baseball and kickball. Our teacher gave us two pages of arithmetic to do in one hour. If we did't get it done, we would have to stay after school and finish it.

We didn't have a gym or shop. We had movies about three times a year. We had an open auditorium, but if it rained, we would have to call off whatever was scheduled.

We had a big patrol of 32 boys. We had nice beaches and there were two golf courses that are fun to play on. We have six drive-in theaters and a big amusement park. - Norman Glenn Edwards.

MONK'S ISLAND

BY A. G. WARSHAWSKY

But as nothing is perfect here below, our island idyll, too, had its depressing side. M. Rozalier, our host, was the kindest hearted man in the world. I have seen him almost turn faint when his wife cut her finger with a knife; but butchery was his trade. On certain mornings his courtyard would be filled with bleating lambs and calves, tied by their forelegs, ready to be slaughtered. Large frightened eyes would look up at us pleadingly, full of despair and misery. It seemed impossible that I should ever touch meat again. Yet, being pensionaires of the butchery, meat was our staple fare, the only vegetable being the invariable Breton potato, which we would supplement by buying fish and salad. To escape the imploring eyes of Rozalier's victims and their haunting reproach, I arranged to be out of the house betimes on these tragic mornings of bloodshed and immolation.

The favorite redezvous of the natives were the three small pine woods, poetically named Bois des Soupirs (Grove of Sighs), Bois des Regrets), and—how could it be otherwise?—the Bois d'Amour. The last named, being the largest, was also the most popular, as love is ever more desirable than the sighs and regrets which follow in its wake. On these public promenades we had occasion to note the various curious customs of the islanders, one of which is the outspoken caste feeling of the seafaring population, and its disdain for the farmers, although the latter are the wealthiest part of the community.

Many retired sea captains and ship-builders came to spend their last years in this beautiful haven, and with their wives and daughters formed an aristocratic circle. The young girls of the well-to-do class were coquettishly clad, often in beautiful Chinese or Oriental fabrics, brought by the men folks from their distant voyages; embroidered silk aprons and spotless coiffes with designs in delicate Irish paint lace, the two white ribbons fluttering behind giving their headgear an air of lightness and grace not to be imparted by the chicest of Parisian hats.

Unlike the usual peasant class, these Island women take great care of their hands and complexions, seldom walking in the sun unless shaded by a parasol. It was my ambition to paint one of these handsome girls, but they were very shy with the stranger, to say nothing of the fact that many of them worked at the convent with the Bonnes Soeurs as lace-makers. But fortunately, thanks to my being on good terms with the village lads, and younger men, I was able to visit certain homes and become acquainted with their parents. Having made a sketch of la vieille Mere Morice, I obtained permission to paint the portrait of her granddaughter Beatrice, who was the beauty of the island. She posed for me in the garden, under the chaperonage of her grandmother and aunts.

During the heat of the day, the women folk of the family would work in the large common room, facing on to the garden. Mathes and I painted a group of them at their lace-making. Their sober costumes, set off by creamy coiffes, the white-washed walls flecked with sunlight and a glimpse of the garden through the open window, made a rare and fascinating subject for the painter. We became very friendly with this little family, and at times the old father or the sons, who were employed as coast-guards, would take us out in their boats—often starting before dawn —to troll for mackerel. These the Pere Morice would grill on a little charcoal stove, installed in the stem of the boat, and serve for our breakfast with huge hunks of crusty peasant bread and a plentyful supply of cider—a feast for the gods!

Baptisms, weddings, and funerals were important events and always celebrated as such. The Bretons, especially the seafaring folk, are stoically resigned to the loss of their dear ones—losses which often come in sudden and brutal fashion.

SONG FOR ORPHEUS

We speak in song, remembering lovers,
Calling the same speech an old memory.
It should take a song to name a garden's beauty,
To take its parts in hand
And make the lily white as God
Or the rose as red as love.
It should take a song to give the dream
A real appearance,
To leave each garden's beauty, untouched by seasons,
To take away the separateness of spring from winter.

We speak in song
That real appearance
May move as lively as a kite in summer.
The song is the memory touched by song.

You, Orpheus, remembered Love's mirror, Stretched in the cool water. You, Orpheus, took the garden's parts in hand And made hell dance in your own image.

There in the garden
Orpheus sang to the smooth water
And love burst like a rose of real appearance.

Orpheus was no god but a singer.
Though had he told me,
Look in love's mirror,
Find Christ in His beauty,
I should remember.

III.

Can it be that God is loveless?

Mon Dieu m'a dit,

Mon fils il faut m'aimer.

Can it be that God is loveless?

Mon fils il faut m'aimer.

But the garden is
The oldest dream under heaven.
Can it be that God dreamed the garden,
Placed it on the other side of real appearance?
What can the loss of song mean?
The loss?

But heaven is reflected in the beautiful water.
Orpheus, smooth the water:
I would have real appearance
Grown out of dreams.

Mais, mon Dieu m'a dit,
"Love me or dreams end."
Mon Dieu m'a dit,
"Love me or songs end."

-ROBIN BLASER.

At any moment a telegram may arrive, announcing death by drowning or accident, and it is then that the Breton finds comfort and resignation in his simple, mystic faith.

An island funeral is a tragically impressive ceremony. The coffin, placed on a peasant's cart, is hauled by slow-footed oxen, followed by the clergy chanting, and all the civilian population, clad in black, bringing up the rear, to the little cemetery by the old church overlooking the bay and shaded by century-old trees—fit resting place for these seafarers and their faithful companions. When it is over, the widow, who in these parts of Brittany is generally the mother of a large brood of town has been children, takes up her burden uncomplainingly. Sometimes she is allowed a small pension, but more often she has to rely on the kindly aid of neighbors, who may be hardly better off than herself.

Though the sea constantly takes a heavy toll on the island's male population, it is the dream of every little lad to ship off as a "mousse" (cabin boy) generally at the age of thirteen, sometimes even earlier as a "passenger"—a technical distinction to circumvent the marine laws, which do not permit boys under thirteen to be employed as part of a crew. These "passengers" work without pay as aids to the cook and cabin boys.

If funerals are sad in Breton lands, nothing can surpass the joy of the "Noce," or wedding feast. For days before the actual celebration, all is animation and gaiety on the island. From the mainland friends and relatives arrive to attend the feast, which among the richer inhabitants, usually lasts three days, during which singing and dancing go on until the early hours of the morning. The girls, dressed in their gayest costumes, are in striking and picturesque contrasts to their partners, clad in close-fitting black broadcloth, with necks pinioned in high white collars, their red, horny hands protruding from all too short sleeves. From village to village the "Noce" winds its way, bride and groom preceding, while Elie hobbles along playing his single tune on the accordion. At every inn there will be a halt for drinking toasts to stimulate the merrymakers. Despite the uproarious fun, frequent potations, and crudely Gallic witticisms—the girls being kissed and fondled on the least provocation—no one seems the worse for drink or incurs the wrath of jealous rivals.

As for the bell-ringing on such occasions, I was informed by a Breton friend that according to tradition the peals should ring out only at a virgin's widding. He slyly added that in certain localities of the Breton coast the bells were rusting from disuse, as "M. le Cure" is naturally in the secret of all his devout parishioners.

If this custom is truly observed, then I can affirm that the "Monks' Island" was also the "Virgins' Island," though of course it would occasionally happen here, as elsewhere, that a lassie would take on maternal responsibilities without previously consulting either "M. le Maire" or "M. le Cure." But for this too tender fault she was seldom brought to the shame or scorn which would be her lot in many so called more civilized communities. In most cases her sailor lad on his return home would gladly recognize his offspring and the union would receive the consecration of the Church before she set out once more.

No one but a painter—above all, a landscape painter—realizes how important an item is the humble paint-rag which he needs to clean his brushes. The supply we had brought with us was quickly exhausted, and we had to have recourse to old wearing apparel, finally, in our need, even sacrificing the less visible and essential parts of our shirts. At last old Mother Morice came to our rescue with some old sheets, which we were glad to purchase in our dilemma. Ever since that day the humble paint-rag acquired an enhanced importance in my eyes and is never lost sight of among the essential paraphernalia for a painting expedition.

JANE VIAL, SOCIAL EDITOR Krattli-Foster Wedding

Lieutenant Commander James A. Krattli and Barbara Foster repeated their wedding vows before the altar of St. Angela's Catholic Church in Pacific Grove last Saturday. The late afternoon ceremony was performed by the Reverend Father Joseph Balker, and Barbara was given in marriage by her father, Reginald Foster.

The haid gown was of heavy word satm, with chantilly lace bertha and peplum and a full skirt with long train. Attached to the pearl-embroidered satin circlet which covered her hair was a long silk illusion veil. The bridal bouquet was of purple-throated white orchids, lily of the valley and white bouvardia.

The maid of honor, Miss Barbara Bagman of San Marino, wore a gown of emerald green satin fashioned with tight bodice, high standing collar ending in a v-neck and long sleeves. The hoop skirt was decorated with appliqued bows of the same fabric. Attached to her wrist was a trailing bouquet of pale green Fujiyama chrysanthemums and trailing ivy, and she wore a coronet made of the same

The same gown, in shocking pink satin, was chosen for the bridesmaids, whose trailing bouquets were of pale pink Fujiyama chrysanthemums and ivy, these being repeated in the coronets upon their hair. The bridesmaids were Miss Isabel Walker of Los Angeles, Miss Betty Dougherty of Carmel, Miss Sally Millet of St. Paul, and Miss Charlotte Baldwin of Stockton, all former Mills College classmates of the bride.

Lieutenant Commander Glen Michel served as best man, and the ushers were Lieutenant Commandrs Robert Mohle, William Dunham, William Henderson and Lieutenant Norman Thomas.

Mrs. James Tyson is spending a few days at the Town House in Los Angeles to visit friends and see her brother, David Kennedy. Mr. Tyson is of the opinion that she's escaping his Christmas preparations, since, being a firm believer in the old-fashioned, homely accoutrements of the season, he has had her tangled up with making candles, popcorn balls and garlands, and stringing cranberries.

Helen Dean Back

Among the pleasures she managed to sandwich in between buying expeditions were the National Horse Show and the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

Christmas is for the whole family, so don't overlook man's best friend-your dog. JEZEBEL'S DOG HOUSE has cunning Christmas stockings (in all sizes) to hang on the mantle just for poochie. They are filled with all sorts of toys and yummies to delight the heart of the most discerning dog. Of course, if your best friend is a cat there are cat stockings too. Nice additional gifts for your dog, a new collar and leash or a hand woven sweater.

JEZEBEL'S and we agree that pets make such welcome gifts at Christmas time. There are roller canaries that are guaranteed to sing for their supper at $10 (the canaries, that is). JEZEBEL'S also have two aristocratic Siamese male kittens with their supple grey bodies and sable points, bright blue eyes, and winning ways for $20 apiece. JEZEBEL'S DOG HOUSE is located on 8th just above Dolores Street. They will also spruce up your dog with a bath, trim and complete beauty treatment for the festive days ahead.

For stars in her eyes give Van Raalte nylon for Christmas. HAR-RIET DUNCAN in Carmel has this "stuff dreams are made of". For you to please your Miss with there is nothing like nylon. It washes, dries and wears so divinely. A complete wardrobe can be had in shades of jade, mimosa, mauve, blue horizon, dawn-glow and cloud-white - consisting of panties, slips, bed-jackets, nightgowns and negligees. These nylon niceties are ideal for travel especially for the air-minded. For an example the negligees only weigh 5 oz.! The price at HAR-RIET DUNCAN'S for these dreams are equally as light and airy-$7.95 to $14.95. Nylon, because she loves nice things.

If you don't know it already (and you certainly should), the CARMEL FLOOR COVERING CO. has moved, in order to have more room in which to take better care of their customers and many friends. They have a complete line of linoleums (domestic and English). Venetian blinds and plastic tiles. THE CARMEL FLOOR COVERING CO.'s new location is on San Carlos between 5th and legs-nothing enhances a woman's 6th.

CANDLES OF CARMEL are really getting all lit up for Christmas. New, gay and ever so bright festive candles deck the shop in their warm glow. Santa Claus heads have the candle in back, consequently, all the while, Santa's face shines with a ruddy glow without melting. Other novelties are a Christmas tree that drips snow over its green boughs while burning, reindeer, skating snowmen, sets of igloos and eskimos, and choir boys. They all come in various sizes from little to big and back again. CANDLES OF CAR-MEL have clever wax Christmas tree ornaments that are either sold separately or in boxes of 12, including angels, snowmen, Santa Claus and a drum major. Have you ever seen a snowman made out of a gourd? CANDLES OF CARMEL have the cutest littl' ol' snowman made out of one with a candle standing brightly by his side. CANDLES OF CARMEL are located in the Golden Bough Court on HOLMAN'S TOYLAND is really being kept busy trying to fill all of Santa's orders for him. He likes HOLMAN'S bargains. For the youngest, youngest child there are soft crib toys in shapes of dolls, pigs, rabbits and ducks—for 35-50 cents, all with an inside whistle.

For many happy creative hours there are paint sets for the older moppet. Paint set ---- from 49c to $1.95, some have combinations of water colors, crayons, tempera. Others have these plus colored chalks and 'à slate. Fun for all are eight-color finger painting sets. For $1.69 your child can paint without paint-that's right, without paints. The pages of the paint book look like plain black and white, until presto, with a whisk of the brush a riot of color breaks forth.

HOLMANS' TOYLAND could likewise be called HOLMAN'S TREE TRIMLAND with all their fancy ornaments that would even make a joshua tree look glamorous!! The mainstay of the Christmas tree is its light. Nothing is worse than having a tree with temperamental lights that flicker, go on and off spasmadically or just stay off, while you crawl up and under the tree trying to find the cause, knocking off ornaments and making a general mess en route. No more, not if you select new indoor and outdoor lights at HOLMAN'S. They have separate globes, each one burning for itself —as well as the frivolous bubble lights. Really trrific are the indoor and outdoor On-A-Lights. They are completely new and different. You make up your own set. It's in the socket and all you do is add it on anywhere. String the cord on the tree, trim it and attach On-A-Lights—thats all. HOLMAN'S TOYLAND in Pacific Grove.

No other word but sensational can describe the going-out-of-business sale at the CARMEL JEWEL ER-and at such a perfect time of year! It is a close out on the complete stock including watches, silerware, clocks, rings, real and costume jewelry. The slash in these prices is unbelievable. Do your Christmas shopping, as well as just taking advantage of the terrific bargains, at the CARMEL JEWEL-ER. Follow the smart buyers to Ocean Ave., between Mission and San Carlos.

Men love women with beautiful legs more than sheer, flattering hosiery. A well designed stocking will slenderize and glamorize any type of leg (you don't need to have the Betty Grable variety). Stockings make terrific Christmas gifts that everyone can afford, and they are always welcome. We thought that perhaps this week you would like a little information on the choir at Carmel High.

Mr. Farr now has a magnificent choir of thirty-eight members this year, and he is very much pleased with its progress. In fact, they were so quick to learn that they were able to present to us a very delightful Thanksgiving program, which Mr. Farr feels was very quick work indeed.

The chair is now preparing for their Christmas programs. They have four outside engagements; that is, four performances out side of the special program that they give for the students at school. The program will also include some numbers by a small instrumental group. If you have a chance at all to see and hear this group.

As part of the fullfilment of its motto, "Scholarship Service" the C.S.F. club will contribute a large share of the food for the annual food drive, sponsored by the Carmel High Leaders Club. This action was decided upon at the regular monthly meeting Monday night, and was passed unanimously by all present.

Telephone . . . Voice. Voice: . . . But Mrs. Stuart, you said right in the Pine Cone that sulphur is good for the garden. I followed your advice and now my violets look awful. You said right in the Pine Cone . . .

Me: Have you a copy of that Pine Cone handy on sulphur?

Voice: (hesitantly) Well, no. I guess that issue got lost. But you said in the Pine Cone, Mrs. Stuart, as plain as day that sulphur was good for plants.

Me: Sulphur is not only good; sulphur is necessary. But, when I mentioned sulphur I also mentioned a warning.

Voice: Warning? What sort of warning?

Me: I warned that sulphur cannot be used in conjunction with any spray that has an oil base. Have you sprayed your garden with any commercial spray that has an oil base?

Voice: Goodness, I don't know. First I did what you said in the Pine Cone, to sprinkle sulphur over violets. Then I gave everything a good spraying . . . I can't remember what I sprayed with . . . Now my violets look awful dead, and you said in the Pine Cone . . .

Me: Just a moment, I'll get that article on spraying and we shall see what is what. (I whisk off to my files, I whisk back). Pine Cone, January 16, 1948. "The first prerequisite in spraying a garden, is to read instructions. All sprays give detiled instructions on their use as well as on their dangers. If the spray you are using has an oil base, do not use sulphur at the same time. Several weeks should elapse before sulphur is applied."

Voice: Oh dear me! I guess I didn't read the article all the way through. What on earth shall I do now? My violets look awful, and you did say in the Pine Cone . . Me: Your violets are not dead; only the foliage has been hurt. Voice: Is that so? Well, you should just see those violets!

Me: Well, cheer up. The roots are not dead and given a chance the plants will come back and bloom for you. Cut away all the dead leaves, cover the plants with leafmold, keep damp, and in no time you will be picking violets again.

Voice: Well, that's fine, and thank you, Mrs. Stuart, . . . but you did say in the Pine Cone. . . .

The Alarm Clock Has Wrung For Carmel

(Continued from Page Three) have not been fully agreed upon, but it was decided by members of the Point Lobos League that all local organizations be approached with the view to asking them to help by endorsing the project or, whenever possible, by donations either through membership drives, or by donations from individual members.

"Remember," Whitaker said, "when you realize that if you raise one dollar, you are actually setting to work four other dollars. Doesn't that sound like a bargain?" -

All contributions, it was announced last night, may be sent to John-Abernanthy, Treasurer, Point Lobos League, Box 1000, Carmel.

Last night's meeting of the league took place at the home of Horace Lyon. Among those invited to attend were Dr. William Anguin, J. E. Abernanthy, Dr. A. L. Van Meter, Mrs. J. L. FOREST THEATER GUILD

At a meeting of the Forest Theater Guild Tuesday evening, Forest Barnes, presiding in the absence of president David Prince, announced that the next production will be The Little Foxes. Mr. Barnes made clear that anyone, member or not, may read for parts, which are assigned only upon the decision of a selected committee. He also spoke of his Workshop group, which meets Wednesday evenings at Sunset School as a part of the adult education program, and urged anyone interested to take part.

Following an interesting discussion of the growth and development of the Guild and the program aimed at a permanent theater of its own, Peggy Walsh reported that the Guild had presented $225 to the Community Chest from the proceeds of Stage Door. Yvonne Gardiner was elected secretary of the Guild, and Jane Parker was named assistant publicity chair-

After the business meeting, Betty and Ken McDougall entertained the members with an amusing scene from Noel Coward's Private Lives.

Council, County To Get Together On School Safety

The Carmel Unified School District, represented by Superintendent Stuart Mitchell, the P.T.A., by Mrs. Edmund Sullivan and Carmel Woods School Marjorie McCausland principal, appealed to the city council Wednesday night to cooperate in reducing the hazard from speeding cars to the children on their way to Carmel Woods School. There are three crossings of main traffic arteries, one of them masked by a curve. The Traffic Safety Sallies in the middle of the crossings do not appear to be effective to slow down traffic.

On the motion of Councilman Allen Knight there will be a conference between city, county and school representatives to establish a lower speed limit, and clear brush along the roads and create walkways whenever possible. On the motion of Councilman Andy Martin the city will explore the possibilities of hiring two crossing guards to control traffic at the crossings during the peak hours.

Other business included a discussion of Jimmie Hatlo's appeal for consideration in the zoning of his residential property which was erroneously marked on a map in the city hall as business property, which he bought under the impression that it was business property, and which has been assessed on the tax rolls as such. The city attorney's findings are that it is residential properties according to the zoning boundaries as outlined in the city ordinances, and that the map hanging in the council room is not an official map. Council decided to take the matter under advisement and perhaps refer it to the planning commission.

Contract for the city's legal publication for 1950 was let to the Carmel Pine Cone at the same rate as for 1949. The Pine Cone was the only bidder as there is no other paper that qualifies as a newspaper of general circulation in the city of Carmel.

Ruth Otrich Is Injured In Crash

Mrs. S. O. Otrich, whose husband is proprietor of Candles of Carmel, was badly shaken up and received a dislocated ankle and scratches about the face when her little French Peugelot was forced off the road and completely-wrecked Wednesday just north of San Juan Junction on Highway 101.

Mrs. Otrich, headed for San Francisco, had just crossed the Southern Pacific overpass and gone onto the two-lane highway that forms the bottleneck from that spot into Gilroy, when Dr. G. F. Norman of San Francisco, travelling south, passed a truck, allegedly forcing Mrs. Otrich's car off the road. According to reports, before the doctor could stop his car, he crashed into a car load of soldiers from Fort, Ord. He took Mrs. Otrich into the Gilroy hospital for treatment.
